- The primary cause for these instances of tardiness is a significant and recent change in the road policy and traffic conditions along my daily commute route. Specifically, the road leading to the Balibago Complex, which is a critical part of my travel, has been changed from a one-way to a two-way street. Furthermore, heavy-wheeler trucks are now permitted to pass through this route.

  This change has created severe and unexpected traffic congestion, particularly during peak hours. As a result, my usual travel time has increased from an average of 15-20 minutes to over an hour. This has directly impacted my ability to arrive on time, despite leaving my home with what was previously a sufficient time allowance.

  I understand that my tardiness is a violation of the company's attendance policy, and I sincerely regret the inconvenience it has caused. I am actively taking steps to adjust my commute schedule to ensure this does not happen again. I have already begun leaving my home much earlier to account for the new traffic conditions and to ensure I arrive at work ahead of my scheduled time.
